

Keywords/Questions:

Notes:

beautify

Atom Beautify: Makes your code look nicer, more organized and easier to read.

-You can touch Packages>Atom Beautify>Beautify to access it.

 tag: used to write individual paragraphs. It has a closing tag at the end of the paragraph.

 tag: italicizes the text. It has a closing tag. Tells the browser that the text in between and is emphasized.

 tag: italicizes the text. It has a closing tag. It doesn't tell the browser anything.

-visually similar with

: is preferred compared to  because in html we care about structuring our text rather than comparing how it looks and also conveys more information.

 tag: boldens the text. It has a closing tag. Tells the browser that the text in between and is strengthened tag: boldens the text. It has a closing tag. It doesn't tell the browser anything.

-visually similar with

: is preferred compared to because in html we care about

structuring our text rather than comparing how it looks and also conveys more information.

Summary:

beautify: makes code look more structured and organized.

: used to declare a paragraph. It has a closing tag.

 and : both visually make text bold and have closing tag. Only conveys info to the browser. must be used instead in our webpage.

 and : both visually make text italicized and have closing tag. Only conveys info to the browser. must be used instead in our webpage

We can use a tag in between tags to bolden an italicized part or vice versa.